Inside Hawai`i Island's World of Coffee

At Waikoloa Beach Resort, you can find a good cup of coffee almost everywhere you turn. Most of the time, that coffee will have been grown, dried, and roasted right here on Hawai`i Island. For example, Hilton Waikoloa Village features several locations of Waikoloa Coffee Company where guests can find a signature brew; Island Gourmet Market sells an array of local coffee beans at Queens' MarketPlace; and Starbucks sells its distinctive blends, also at Queens' MarketPlace. But there's so much more to the story.

TWO CENTURIES OF FLAVOR

The first record of coffee in the Sandwich Isles appears in 1813, when a Spaniard named Don Francisco de Paula y Marin noted in his journal that he planted seedlings of coffee on the island of O`ahu. Though not much else is known about the trees that Marin planted, Hawaiian coffee — and Kona coffee in particular — has over the ensuing two centuries become almost as synonymous with the state as dreamy beaches and coconut trees.

The first coffee was planted on Hawai`i Island by Reverend Joseph Goodrich of the Hilo mission in an attempt to make the mission, and its native Hawaiian students, a self-sustaining enterprise.

When Reverend Samuel Ruggles, an American missionary who came to the islands in 1820 with the First Company of American missionaries, was transferred to Kona from Hilo in 1828, he brought coffee plant cuttings with him and began cultivating them near the Kealahou Church to which he was assigned.

Ruggles' coffee trees took some time to become established, but eventually they began to thrive and were the most successful of any of the early attempts at growing coffee in Hawai`i.

The industry grew to the point that, at the 1873 World's Fair in Vienna, an award for excellence was given to a pioneering Kona coffee trader named Henry Nicholas Greenwell. This recognition further escalated the reputation of Hawaiian-grown coffee, and caused a boost in production for many farms.

In 1880, Hawai`i's first large-scale coffee mill was constructed by John Gaspar Machado near Kealahou Bay, in the heart of the island's coffee-growing region.

But perhaps the most significant advancement in the Kona coffee industry occurred in 1892, when a variety of Arabica coffee was introduced by a sugar grower named Herman Weidemann. Due to its resistance to diseases and ability to flourish in the mountainous terrain, this Arabica strain quickly became the dominant variety grown in Kona. It still is today.

The coffee industry was such an important part of life on the island that in 1932, the Kona public school system began letting students out for "summer" break from August until November, instead of the traditional June to September. The new schedule allowed the children to help with the coffee harvest, and the break came to be known as the Kona Coffee Vacation.

In the 1980s, as sugarcane was being phased out, many of the cane fields were planted with coffee, and by 2000 coffee had become one of the most important crops throughout the state, with Kona Coffee leading the way. Today in the Kona region alone, there are an estimated 700 independent coffee farms, most just three to seven acres in size.

SEED-TO-TABLE

"Coffee is part of the culture of the islands," says Jayson Kanekoa, executive chef at Waikoloa Beach Marriott Resort & Spa. "Every state drinks coffee, but Hawai'i is the only state that produces coffee."

Kanekoa (pictured below right) oversees a mini-grove of 38 coffee trees that are planted outside the Marriott's Hawaii Calls restaurant. Although the small grove doesn't produce enough beans for the hotel's coffee supply, Kanekoa does use the beans from the trees to produce a rub that is used to flavor fish and meat dishes in the restaurant.

"The beans are ready to pick in November," Kanekoa says. "Guests — particularly kids — enjoy picking them, learning about the drying and roasting process, and tasting the menu items that use the rub we make from the beans."

The coffee trees were the idea of longtime Marriott employee Oren Yamagata, whose family owns a coffee farm in Kealakekua, south of Kona. "I mentioned the idea to our general manager one day," Yamagata says, "and he liked it. So, we cleaned an area by the pool and planted the trees." Yamagata helped the landscaping staff understand how to properly prune and care for the trees, and it turned out to be a hit with guests.

Also outside Hawaii Calls is another "seed-to-table," guest-friendly garden where taro, sweet potatoes, bananas, and a few other plants are grown that have played such a large part in Hawai'i's history.

DAYLIGHT MIND

Resort guests can also find a variety of coffee drinks at Daylight Mind Café & Restaurant in Queens' MarketPlace, a coffee-pub, featuring carefully sourced, roasted, and brewed coffees, with an emphasis on Hawai'i-grown coffees. The restaurant has partnered with several boutique, family-owned farms in the Holualoa area (just above Kona) to source beans that are just right for the drinks they serve. One blend, for example, was engineered specifically for the complexity and balance required in espresso.

KA'U COFFEE AT MAI GRILLE

At Mai Grille in the Waikoloa Kings' Golf Course clubhouse, Chef Allen Hess has been creating buzz not only with a menu of delectable cuisine, but with the blended, Ka'u-grown coffee he serves.

"My family bought a 5-acre plot in the Ka'u region (near South Point) six years ago," Hess says. "We now have about 6,000 coffee plants growing there."

The farm grows three varieties, including Typica ("for its hardness," says Hess), Liberica ("for its vanilla flavors and fancier notes"), and Mocha ("which lends a robust, woody flavor"). The blend made on the farm is available exclusively in Mai Grille and — under the Jara Farms label — at several specialty stores on island.

"In recent years, Ka'u coffee has been winning awards," Hess says. "The farmers in Ka'u are very proud of that. Our family has a finger on every aspect of the coffee production, from planting and pruning to picking the beans when they are ripest to roasting it to a perfect medium dark. For us, it's about creating a highly enjoyable blend of the highest quality."

At Waikoloa Beach Resort, coffee is celebrated and enjoyed, as befits one of the state's most prized crops.

MOKU O KEAWE INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

The Moku O Keawe International Festival Hula Competition brought Hawaiian culture to life at Hilton Waikoloa Village on March 8 – 11. Several workshops in hula technique were offered and standout evening performances included Wahine Kahiko, Kapuna, and Wahine `Auwana.

Produced by Moku O Keawe Foundation, the festival is part of an ongoing effort to enrich and educate the practice and development of hula and its associated arts, and also to build, strengthen, and inspire the living cultural traditions of Hawai'i.

Sponsors included Waikoloa Beach Resort, Hilton Waikoloa Village, Big Island Candies, Sushi Shiono, and Sig Zane Designs.

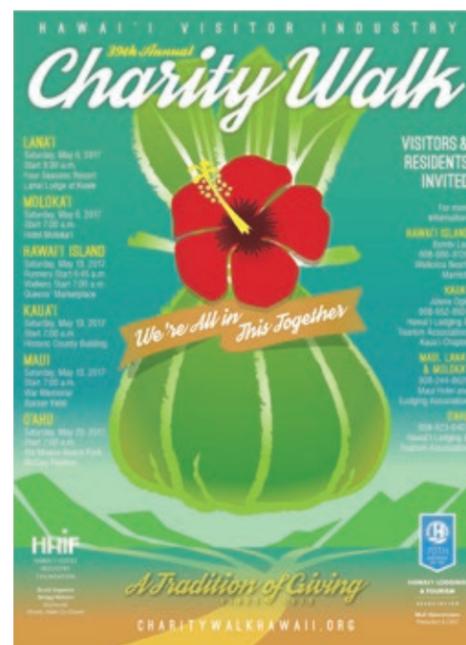

WALK FOR A GOOD CAUSE

On May 13, more than 3,000 walkers and 160 runners will take part in the 39th Annual Charity Walk Fundraiser, sponsored by the Hawaii Lodging & Tourism Association. Last year, $305,690 was raised for 54 Hawaii Island charities, and event organizers anticipate that even more will be raised this year. "The Charity Walk will be bigger and better than ever," said Steve Yannarell, co-chair of the Walk and general manager of the Waikoloa Beach Marriott Resort & Spa. "We're adding food booths, entertainment, and children's activities ... it is shaping up to be a fun day that will also benefit some amazing organizations." In addition to the 5k run and walk, some 30 food stations hosted by hotels and resort restaurants will be set up around Queens' MarketPlace where the race begins and ends. "All the food booths were asked to incorporate local tomatoes into their dishes," Yannarell said. "That got our local farmers involved and added a fun twist." Children's activities booths, a comedy act by m/c Tony Silva, a live radio broadcast, and a silent auction are also planned. Statewide, more than $2 million is raised by Hawaii Lodging & Tourism Association Charity Walks each year, but as Yannarell says, "Money raised on Hawai'i Island stays on Hawai'i Island. I encourage everyone to come out and participate!"

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHT BUFFETS

Enjoy our $55++ prime rib and cracked crab buffet... all you can eat!

Monday & Wednesday, 5 pm

Executive Chef Jayson Kanekoa has unveiled a new menu for the popular Sunset Luau held every Monday and Wednesday at Waikoloa Beach Marriott Resort & Spa. Taste the freshest of ingredients harvested from Hawai'i Island farmers including J.A. Farms Garden Salad, Waipio Valley Poi, Keahole Shrimp Hoio, Pulehu steaks, and Grilled chicken with Hamakua mushrooms. See chef roast pork in the resort's imu, the Hawaiian underground oven. Following dinner, journey to Tahiti, New Zealand, Hawai'i and Sāmoa through the songs and dances of these Pacific cultures. The spellbinding Samoan fire dance is a spectacular sight!

General seating prices are $108 for adults, $54 for keiki 6-12 years old, and keiki 5-and-under are FREE. Premier seating includes preferred first row seating, lei greeting and Hawaiian pūpū (appetizer); additional $30 per seat.

Rates do not include Hawai'i state sales tax and are subject to change. Tickets can be purchased from 4 pm on Mondays and Wednesdays at the hotel in our lobby. Seating begins at 5 pm. Large parties are advised to arrive at the lu'au grounds early to accommodate group seating.

For more information or to make reservations at Hawaii Calls Restaurant & Lounge or the Sunset Lu'au, call (808) 886-8111. Reservations for Hawaii Calls can also be made on Open Table.
